Dear Ms. Williams:

In all truth and honesty I write this to you.

How you view the depiction of what I am going to state to you here is an official record. You personally have done nothing wrong but in that you are in view here as an official agent,

I need to describe a story to which our exchange here becomes paramount in a resolve of matters out beyond us that have happened to me in my healthcare of HIV/AIDS Disease.

This is more than just speculation or subjective opinion. Frankly, the last two attempts to find an appropriate healthcare interface with Humana has failed. This will be my 3rd attempt.

If it was not for the recent publication of an nih.gov document, perhaps I would not be writing this to you. Perhaps my opinions here would be dismissed as just speculation, subjective opinion, and not treated with dignity and honesty to which this is the purpose written for. Without the nih.gov published document just this April 6th 2020, I would have no tangible reference to argue such a baseline dilination that would continue a state of unyielding abuse in continued dismissals of these truths.

In that your email is signed by outlook --- a microsoft networking product, I know certain facts about how your email is processed and by what can and cannot be done with this part of conditions that must be addressed in my healthcare that for the last two attempts failed an integrity test of proper orderly priorities to address what is ultimately noted as a [National Institute of Health Research Findings Paper].

Yes Indeed it is a matter of health.

The matters to which this nih.gov document is pronounced to be a factor involved in my life unaddressed is over 15 years.

Let me say, obviously - the causing effect cannot be placed onto humana or you for that matter. But that neither excuses the conducts of of the primary doctors of my last two attempts nor their completely out of line positions abstract disorderly upon the positions researched in this nih.gov paper. The acts that have occurred to me for 15 years unaddressed are criminal in nature.

Not only criminal in nature but as far as the prevailing positions of the researched data, none of which the actions of criminal actions set in 50 other's stories researched have terminated. Moreover, the ongoing structures of activity that is harming me and others are substantially noted that the longest researched finding is 22 years and still no resolve of termination of these harming effects individually onto their life.

This Email Will Continue In Separate Reply Thread Part.

I have purposefully omitted the nih.gov titled publication until the matter so far addressed is placed into reference to validate for an official written purpose need with Humana this email signature data. Although not a secret, all one would have to do is go authoritative department of human is contacted and exchanged here, I GIVE NO CONSENT for any person receiving this to conduct such an exercise in data mining efforts on the positions introduced here to conduct an avoidance non-responsive positio

I GIVE NO CONSENT FOR HUMANA TO IGNORE THE GRAVITY HERE INTRODUCED --- I GIVE NO CONSENT FOR HUMANA TO BLOCK TRUTH TO AVOID THIS THUS IN ALL MATTERS HEREIN, AS CRIMINAL ACTIVITY OF OTHERS IS ASSE AN INTENTIONAL OBSTRUCTION OF JUSTICE.

Do you understand what I am expressing here?

Ms. Williams, please advise my PRIMARY CARE DOCTOR of an OFFICIAL WRITTEN NEEDS COMPLIANCE DOCUMENT MUST BE SOUGHT AS A REMEDY. SUCH A DOCUMENT IN MY COUNTY WOULD BE CONDUCTED BY AN INTERFACE T

Mr. Driskill,

I have explained to you on numerous occasions that the district attorney's office is unable to address your concerns, and that you must contact your local law enforcement agency to complete a police report for any crimes committed against you. We are unable to take a police report from you.

I would appreciate if you would stop attempting to contact me in any manner. This includes through my work phone, work cell phone, my personal cell phone, my business phone, my work email, my personal email, my colleagues here at the DA's office, my business associates, my personal social media and my business social media. I mention all of these because these are the means at which you have attempted to inform me on two occasions prior to today to stop contacting me.

You are personally harassing and stalking me, which is a violation of law. Should you not stop your activity, I will have no other option than to have you arrested, file a restraining order, and also take civil action ("la suar") against you.

It is true that government agencies can not ban a person from a social media platform solely because a person expresses a difference of opinion, or is critical of the organization. While we respect your first amendment rights, we also have the right and obligation to not provide a platform where a person can commit a crime, ie; your continued harassment of me.

Should you continue your harassment of me by posting content which is aimed at drawing my personal attention, or you attempt ANY further communication with me through ANY means, you will be banned from all social media platforms, for the reasons specified above.

COPS RACIST, VIOLENT AND POOR BEHAVIOR ON FACEBOOK

by mbires | Jun 7, 2019 | Uncategorized | 0 comments

Within one week, multiple news outlets have been reporting about violent, racist, or sexist photos, videos, memes, and comments made by police officers on Facebook.

For years, we have been advocating that law enforcement agencies need to do more in terms of how their employees use social media on a personal level.

Most agencies have a policy that, in our opinion, is pretty archaic and does little to protect both the department from future embarrassment and the officer from discipline. Additionally, most of these policies do not offer any leeway or guidance for employees who want to post a positive experience or message about their profession or department.

We believe employees should receive formal training about a myriad of topics surrounding social media and its use and impact on both personal and professional levels, and the officer-safety aspect everyone needs to keep in mind.

BAD SOCIAL MEDIA BY COPS

Unbelievably within the same week, three articles have come to light about what cops are saying and doing on social media. Like it or not, the general public is not liking the comments, pictures, and videos that are being posted by men and women who are sworn to serve the public. In short, the “cops troubling Facebook posts” have been revealed.

In the June 4, 2019 print of The New York Times, author Shaila Dewan wrote an article titled “When Police Officers Vent On Facebook,” which is about Emily Baker-White's discovery of racist and shocking behavior by law enforcement officers on Facebook. Baker-White is the originator of The Plain View Project, or PVP, for short. A review of the Facebook accounts of thousands of officers around the US found officers endorsing violence against Muslims, women, and criminal defendants.

The PVP is a database containing several law enforcement officer's social media activities. It reveals those officers' accounts, comments, and photos or video posts.

A NOTE OF CAUTION: Right now, cops are probably rushing to the website to see if they're in the database. By placing your name in the search field, we do not know if your search inquiry is recorded or cataloged, in hopes of learning of more and more officer's accounts. Use this at your own risk.

In addition to this article in the NYT and the PVP, popular online news outlet, BuzzFeed News, collaborated with Injustice Watch, to write an article about the inappropriate behavior of police officers on Facebook.

Think about that for a minute. That's a total of four sources on the internet that are bringing this issue to light, and with the proliferation of social media and blogs, is not going to die anytime soon. We imagine every credible news source, police news websites, and cop hater groups are going to be writing about this problem.

"It's unfortunate that some times, people use social media for good and bad. When police officers post bad things, it polarizes or perpetuates a growing trend of negative perceptions of law enforcement amongst the community."

by Ryan Tillman, Founder of Breaking Barriers United

THE ADVOCATING OF A POLICE BEATING AND MORE

According to the PVP database, they have uncovered Facebook posts that advocate violent behavior by law enforcement officers, racial comments, and the abuse of women.

As members of the law enforcement community ourselves, we understand the context of what some believe is a morbid sense of humor to cope with the stress of the job. It doesn't mean we condone it; it just means we get the meaning. We're sure doctors and nurses joke or complain about patients, just like every other profession has their moments of venting frustration in a way that could seem offensive to others. We highly doubt though, that these other professions are endorsing death or pain to those who cause them grief in their day-to-day work.

For example, a popular meme with the words, "fuck the police" so I said, "fuck your 911 call, I'll get to your dying homeboy when I finish my coffee" has made its rounds on social media.

What this post means to cops is this; the police are frequently berated or encounter resistance from the same people who won't hesitate to pick up the phone when they need the cops' help. Again, we don't condone it, but we understand the underlying message.

In terms of racist comments and violence and sexual assault among women, there is zero-tolerance for this conduct. Law enforcement officers using social media that we know are offended by this conduct.

Ryan Tillman, a police officer in Southern California, is trying to change teen perceptions of law enforcement, through his company Breaking Barriers United. He is a school resource officer and a victim of negative police contact himself.

Ryan has had fellow police officers leave negative comments on his social media posts, eluding to the fact that police work is more about hunting down suspects, then community policing.

"A lot of times people forget, just because we're police officers, doesn't mean we're not people. A small percentage of police officers probably shouldn't be police officers because of the bad decisions they make. Often, the public is made to believe it's a larger percentage or a huge epidemic."

There are hundreds, if not thousands, of law enforcement officers using social media positively to show what they experience daily. Their accounts are humorous in that they make fun of themselves or the quirky things cops do, as well as enlightening the general public in terms of what they see and do every day.

SO WHAT HAS CAUSED THIS BEHAVIOR?

We believe this outright display of anger, sarcasm, and unprofessional online conduct, has been created by a math formula with the combination of these elements; our online culture, the slanted reporting on law enforcement activities and officers, the passage of laws which benefit the criminal, the lack of holding others accountable for their actions, and a lack of training.

First, the culture created by the public for what is now the "norm" on social media, and the tolerance by the individual social media platforms themselves, is a big part of the problem. This culture has led people to believe they can pretty much say whatever they want, as long as it is not a direct threat or advocacy of a crime, on social media. People can be rude, argumentative, degrading, abusive, angry, and confrontational without any form of accountability.

Some people are consistently leaving negative, unwarranted, disgusting comments on police Facebook pages solely to embarrass or belittle the department or officers, knowing nothing will happen to them. In fact, in many cases, the comments must be left up for the world to see, as people claim a First Amendment right to say whatever they want on a government social media post.

Next, there are slanted media outlets, blogs, advocates, and so-called "watchdog" groups whose sole intent is to make police officers look like fools, and that the cops have no concept of how to enforce the laws. You've probably seen the posts or videos that start with, "Cop gets owned" or "Police get owned." Photos and videos like these can add more fuel to an officer's anger. Ironically, an officer's anger is the same anger an employee at a fast food restaurant, a retail store, a plumber, a doctor, or a nurse would experience if people were doing the same to their professions.

Then you have laws which reward the criminal for their behavior and place the law abiding citizen and police officers at risk. You may remember the video of Mark Robinson at a North Carolina council meeting where he said the majority "are the first one's taxed, the last ones considered, and the first one's punished when things like this (shootings) happen."

We have a lack of accountability today, for those doing crimes in our society. How many articles have you read where politicians, to include district attorneys, have publicly said they aren't going to file charges against people for certain crimes?

Californians joke about the fact it's legal to have a hypodermic needle for easier use of illegal drugs, but be a waiter and give someone a plastic straw and your ass is going to have charges placed on you.

Last is a lack of training we mentioned in the opening of this article and described below. When you add these factors up, it's no wonder why cops are quite frankly, pissed off. They're stressed, over-worked, underpaid, unhealthy, injured and society keeps beating the crap out of them.

FACEBOOK TRAINING FOR POLICE OFFICERS

Although we single out Facebook in the title of this section, we could just as quickly have called it "Instagram Training For Police Officers," or "Twitter Training For Police Officers," and so forth. If these articles in The New York Times and Buzzfeed are not enough to convince law enforcement agencies across the nation to provide legitimate training on the use of social media by their employees, then we don't know what will. We can tell you that Injustice Watch spent months reviewing the Facebook posts by police and have been looking into how police departments regulate their police officers use of social media.

The training we're suggesting needs to be more than just the reading of the policy or the chief telling the officers not to post anything "bad" on social media. It goes farther than that, such as:

- The social media eco-system; What happens, where does it go, and who can see what you post on social media
- How the official police department and police officer social media pages, and personal Facebook profiles, have an effect on a department's image and the profession as a whole
- How police officers can secure their social media accounts to ensure privacy and safety
- The long-term and damaging effects a "humorous" social media post can have on the individual officer, and the department

Let's correct this behavior and look like the professional, strong, determined, compassionate, and intelligent police officers this country expects and deserves.

WE NEED TO POLICE OURSELVES

Law enforcement is a profession. We have a higher standard of ethics and behavior than most other jobs, and most definitely more elevated than the general public. For those using social media, you do not have the luxury of enjoying the First Amendment like the rest of the country. There are policies and the law enforcement code of ethics which regulate your conduct and speech.

Want to instill anger in those who hate you as a police officer? You can do it very quickly by doing the following:

When either online or in person, be an exemplary, professional, educated, compassionate role model adhering to the policies of your department and the code of ethics. You'll be living up to that "higher standard" which your critics can never attain.

We have a difference of opinion here between myself and Mike Bires.

As much as he wants to defend his position, that I am harassing him which is far from the case and that I am stalking him online.

What has actually occurred here, which I have the initiation of conversation in Facebook messenger from the "Send a message" interface?

It is not as though I might need to file a complaint against a police officer, but that might be the result. It is not like I running away from where all of these efforts of "authority" to violate my rights to not engage a citizen in the need to communicate a position of the interdependence of disorderly conduct by police authority not specifically not engage this citizen into a solution and mechanics that is not a single officer reporting solution.

I don't hate Officer Bires. I am not harassing him, although he may not desire the communications directed at him. I am not stalking him, meaning yes I have used alternative to contact him outside of an attorney because he is being hypocritical to his agenda to not engage as a public official in matters to which are interplaying here important to reflect upon to even include this article.

The position I hold is very strong against him. that he knows [as a part of the foundation of this site itself] are relevant matters that he is avoiding.

The conflict of interest that he has in relation to this site is outrageous!

As a person who has faith in "The Pen is Mightier Than The Sword", and advocating violence against a person for any reason is never right. I have done no such action here or anywhere online.

Pay it no mind that I have the right to retain a copy of my own writing. Someone who writes such great position statements such as this article, Mike Bires but in my case is a complete inversion of this advice paradigm held against me by this same man. It is an absolute conclusion and the legal positions outside of these one to one interactions that I guide myself to know where my opinions are being intentionally subverted to avoid a dark ugly truth.

DEEP DOWN, in the heart of all matters absolute. You are the moderator of these comments. I have done absolutely nothing wrong – by stating this comment to you — which in the course of events will be ignored and not approved.

Why Officer Bires, are you afraid of empowering the agent of peace here? Why are you attempting to avoid a truth that you are key to resolve in all things — only you know how to actually be one with the words that you actually write and post here.

Why do you continue to character my intents on you have anything directly to do with a man but rather a role that you indeed are in the position to represent?

Why do you insist on making inaccurate assessments of this situation to defame my character if you were to respond to the public these same positions against me?

I welcome the court magistrate in these regards to figuring out my needs of the District Attorney's Officer in Public Relations and why I continue to press forward even though the statements made are bullying not representing professionalism at its highest standard of excellence. Sir, as a citizen, I personally do not have to have such professionalism involved in my expressions of truth. Also, sir, as hard as it might be to rationalize this, you work for me, ultimately, at its highest point of authority.

There has been absolutely nothing in what I have done — so wrong — to not have an open and honest conversation in these matters which you continue to place barriers before me in an 'informational quarantine'

here that is illegal.
